
Destroy Windows 10 Spying V2.2.2 Build 2 Final Software For WindowsQ: Selecting and Applying CKEditor custom CSS to textarea_custom I'm using CKEditor 3.6 and trying to apply custom CSS to a textarea with type=textarea_custom, however it only applies it to the div around the textarea. I was using the following CSS in a page I made for a co-worker, and it worked perfectly, however when I tried to use it in my CKEditor/AngularJS project, it doesn't work. I'm assuming this is a bug in CKEditor, and not a config issue, however I'm not seeing a problem with my code or config. I've added some simple code to the end of my config.js file. I've not seen anything on this problem in the Google, and many others looking at the issue have found solutions, but they don't seem to help. It's very frustrating having this issue which I know is a bug, and nobody else has mentioned. A: I'm assuming you're using a bootstrap-ed CKEditor which probably also by default creates a #ckeditor-custom div around the textarea, which might be a reason why it doesn't work. To make sure that the CSS is working, open up the Developer Tools in your browser, and change the textarea type to normal text and save. EDIT: Ok, first thing first: CKEditor does not natively support Custom Styles. You have to create your own CSS file with the class name you want. In the config.js set: `config.stylesSet = [{ name: 'example', element: 'textarea', attributes: { style: 'background-color: red; color: blue;' } }]`; After that, add the css-file to the ckeditor styles, by going to: File -> Styles -> Add File and set the path to your css-file. EDIT 2: Ok, your second problem, which you said was related to adding it dynamically is, that you don't actually have access to the config. You should use the config api instead, to add the custom styles: `config.extraConfig.stylesSet.push({ name: 'example', element: ' 4bc0debe42`
